Working with family.

Without a doubt, the most difficult aspect of preparing for the Pole-Shift is the Pole-Shift denial of family, marital partners, non-family loved-ones or close friends. It can be so debilitating, that an individual will not move, or even plan to move, to their safe location without the cooperation or the even permission of those to do so, as they are so dependent or attached to them. Often the denial is not intentional, but due to unconsciousness of the predestined Pole-Shift reality.

On the other hand, I have noted over the years from the many people who have corresponded with me on this issue, that there are several ways people become clearly aware of Pole-Shift-Reality. The various ways Pole-Shift awareness creeps into our consciousness seem to be: born knowing and talked about the Pole-Shift to their parents as children; They became aware as an adult by the “Pole-Shift Dream” experience, of which there are many forms, yet the core message was the same; As an adult they became aware by reading about it, they did the research and came to an ego-based decision about the truth of the impending Pole-Shift; Another group seems to be those who are very intuitive, and have come to feel, inner-see or know in some subjective way, that a great calamity will befall the Earth during their lifetime.

The harsh reality is that only specific people become Pole-Shift aware, some earlier, some later. The remaining only learn of it when the pre-Pole-Shift conditions become so obvious as to be consciously unavoidable, with still others falling deeper into denial and rigidly avoiding having to address Pole-Shift-Reality. This latter group becomes the main constituents of what we call survivor-migrants. I suspect that timely Pole-Shift awareness is by original soul-plan. Regarding the latter: surely the reader realizes that we super-existed before birth and will super-exist after death of our human Earth-based body? It is during those super-Earth conditions that we form agreements, contracts with others and set our individual intentions for certain life-experiences for our upcoming life-time, yet there is no way on God’s-Green-Earth that a person can think-into our pre-birth times with the ego-mind in order to agree or disagree with this point, period. Regarding our agreements-by-spirit, there are exceptions and very rare work-a-rounds of course, but in the main we have to put our “shoulder the wheel” and work our lives best we can and hope for the best.

Emotions have to be “kept in check” when working with our Pole-Shift un-aware family members, otherwise impassioned appeals will only engender a hardening of attitudes toward the subject. There exists a blockage in the mind that causes Pole-Shift denial, this should not be disturbed, therefore, loving acceptance remains to be the best approach. There should be little to no resistance in this matter in the relationship, so that potential acceptance is not interrupted once the individual finally becomes Pole-Shift aware. Of course, during the early times this is easier, but as the run-down to the Pole-Shift wears on without evidence of inner movement by said individuals towards some form of awareness manifesting, executive decisions and their resultant actions will have to be made by the Pole-Shift aware person. Expectations of Pole-Shift awareness from our loved-ones also needs to be lessened, so that emotions do not come into play again when Pole-Shift awareness from our loved-ones is delayed or not manifesting as we hoped. We must let go of desired outcomes, for only the desire for what we want is the essential problem. The desire comes from the past, karmic in nature, we should only then reach for love, so that in the end all will be well.

The method I am using with my five offspring and their children is first, reminding myself regularly that they chose this life-time and knew about the Pole-Shift before incarnating, and second, that they are souls in their own right and must be respected for that.
If we want to know how best to approach the Pole-Shift subject with our loved-ones, observe the waking dreams when thinking about them in this regard or when you are visiting in some fashion. The message will be the pathway forward for you. The waking dreams will be manifesting even if the individual doesn’t believe, want-to-see them or has any kind of resistance to waking dreams. I guarantee to the reader, that the waking dreams will guide you in the very best way and for the very best outcome for all concerned.

Waking Dreams.
What is a “waking dream”? Let’s take a quick look at the basics behind it. Waking dreams are identical in principle to sleep dreams, only you are AWAKE while receiving them. How is this possible? This is because dreaming is a process, just like all the other natural functions of life, in other words, dream ALWAYS occurs. Dream is not about your sleep habits, your mind or your body. Dream surrounds your Life. When you go to sleep, does heat or electricity stop functioning? Dreaming is likewise a constant function of Life, therefore, it doesn’t matter whether you are awake or asleep.
The messages that come via Waking Dreams are essentially the same ones that pass through clairvoyants you may employ, from your own intuition or the truth gleaned from accurate sleep-dream interpretation, it’s all from the same source: your higher self. The big issues with sleep-dream are two-fold: getting accurate interpretation as the scale of dream-language is extremely large, and second, sleep-dream interpretation is not generally taught by our families or in our schools. Yes, you can read books on the subject, but by the simple nature of sleep-dreams, they are absolutely unique to the dreamer, so the cookie-cutter approach does not work. Therefore, you cannot directly apply a general set of meanings attributed by psychologists to objects within a dream, this is the problem with the status quo method of dream interpretation. Now there are common factors that abide, such as white=pure/spiritual, black=death/transition or common Earth-human objects or beings that convey a message by their nature, such as a cup or bowl which contains or a tree for life, the list goes on. Yet every dreamer has their own exclusive set of beliefs and life experiences that set the dream-object meanings by our respective subjective minds. Each dream-object, be they sleep or awake-time dreams, set up pathways of acceptance for the dream-message over which the message travels to your ego-awareness (your waking-mind): what your sleep-dream is trying to tell you. So it is, that the waking-dreamer must educate themselves about how to interpret their Waking Dreams. This is not difficult at all! All the dreamer has to do is observe their day and combine the timing of the visual vignette that passes before your eyes, the object that you are drawn to see or the sound-event at the moment you are considering an important subject. Now we are used to just passing through our days by our intentions of fulfilling our duties, play and/or seeking to fulfill our desires, but the aspiring waking dreamer need only add observation to their day! See your day as a smooth fabric of experience and just notice what sticks OUT of your daily fabric. This happens many ways, but the essential method is to notice what YOUR ATTENTION is drawn-to while you are thinking about something.

you would like clarification with, what is bothering you or what you are wondering about. Your yearnings, needs, desires in MIND seem to be the catalyst for the waking dream to manifest. There are many methods to facilitating the Waking Dream, read my book on the Pole-Shift (2021) for more detail.

Backing up a little: The flip side of sleep-dreaming, is that many people do not remember their dreams! Obviously there exists blockages in their minds to this form of communication. This is perfectly fine, but what to do? Waking dreams then become the work-a-round for those people. Note, that Universal dreaming is still working, so we switch-it-up to observe our dreams during the day. So those people who for some reason have never or rarely ever experienced a sleep-dream can now explore a whole new world. Keep this in mind as well: for not remembering sleep-dreams does not mean you were not dreaming! It only means you did not remember the dream. Admittedly, a person who does not remember their sleep-dreams will tend to lack the experience to interpret their daily waking-dreams or dreams-by-day, but the big advantage for observing Waking Dreams, the day-dreamer has the great benefit of intellect, passive observation and reasoning-power to interpret their dreams on-the-fly, real time and derive the dream-message quickly and effectively without having to remember a sleep dream!

Ham radio.

Ham radio is essentially a radio receiver and a “radio station” (or a broadcasting station) in a single device. “Hams”, or amateur radio licensees, can inter-relate with others with Ham radios freely, as long as the signal is being received equally by both parties. This form of long distance communication is the near future for the After-Time survivor and their communities. Interestingly, the term “Ham” originated from pompous early electronics Grey-beards of the early 20th century, looking down on the advanced methods of voice commutation via “amateur” radio broadcasting. Originally, there was the “Morse code”: an antiquated method of radio communication via “dots” and “dashes” which was essentially a binary operation with it’s own language. This is where “SOS” originated: (dot dot dot “S”, dash dash dash “O”, dot dot dot “S”). The words: “Save Our Souls” was added by sociological circumstances, but more accurately, “Save Our Ship” was the original call.

Getting a Ham radio license (and call sign) is fairly easy these days, and even though the popularity of Ham radio has declined in the last few decades, the test to get a license is reasonably simple to achieve with few weeks of study. Usually a radio enthusiast needs to have a amateur radio license to buy a radio, but with the advent of Chinese amatuer radio manufacturers, it seems anyone can buy a hand-held transceiver from China, just don’t operate until the After-Time!

There are basically 4 categories of amateur radio bands (of frequencies): low, medium, very-high and ultra-high: the higher the band, the more straight the signal is between radios. The straighter (higher the frequency) the signal, the shorter the reach because of the curvature of the Earth, conversely, the lower the frequency the much farther it can reach as it’s signal “bounces” off the ionosphere layer of Earth’s atmosphere. Obviously, short distance communication is the ticket for almost all Pole-Shift survivors to arrange for barter of food and assistance between After-Time communities.

These days, the amateur radio has advanced to the point where very powerful radios can be bought that can broadcast over very long distances, yet radio communication can be very productive over a small to moderate distance of 10 to 20 miles, this is important for After-Time communities within reasonable walking/hiking distances to communicate. The other big advantage with amateur radio, is the very broad scale or range of frequencies available to the radio equipment, this is why I suggest Ham radio equipment in comparison to citizens band radio.

Citizens band radios are high frequency, short distance radio. The receiver must be in a straight-line location (no obstacles such as hills, mountains or buildings in the pathway of radio communication) in order to receive a good signal which is effective from 1 to 15 miles away. CB radio is definitely an option, but your safe location community needs to consider its options when adopting radio communication which depends greatly on location and relative community activities. Citizens Band or “CB” radio is a license-free option. Of course, adopting both Amateur and CB radio is recommended if the funds and expertise is there. If there is any doubt, amateur radio is the best overall choice for a After-Time community radio as it has a very large spectrum of frequencies and a very broad range of related radio and related equipment.

Cell phones will fail utterly to provide consistent communication during the late-rundown to the Pole-Shift (2022) and the networks will be unavailable (extremely busy) in the months before the Pole-Shift and it’s infrastructure will be nonexistent in the After-Time. For hard-line communication, it is suggested to rely on old-fashioned land lines for telephone communication during the END TIMES.

The Pole-Shift end times are HERE NOW: Food!

Food and food-systems are the new gold, there is no doubt of this. Food being the product of food-systems: soil, water gardens, foraging, fishing, hunting and the raising and husbandry of common livestock needs to become the Pole-Shift preppers job 1. Unfortunately, our modern “first world” societies today have long since become supremely food-availability-assumptive. Mass food production for at least a century has been systematized into a kind of a first-world public-unconsciousness, a between-Pole-Shifts and globally-expected plastic-wrapped, sterilized, labeled, government-approved, bottled, canned, dried-and-bagged expectation of food-on-demand. Today, most of us need only drive or walk a mile or so to buy whatever food we could want at our fingertips. This food-convenience will evaporate even before the Pole-Shift is upon us and its wholesale highly-diminished replacement will be very quickly self-evident by those who wish to provide food for their families immediately after the Pole-Shift, this, all-the-while broad-scale bulk and packaged food is still available. Zetatalk suggests that a year and a half of food supply be stocked for the transition into the After-Time.

Many survivors of the Pole-Shift will be just the last minute lucky who have survived by ducking behind a rock outcropping, hunkering down in dip in the ground (not recommended), behind a heavy cement wall, perhaps hiding in a heavy equipment vehicle to avoid the flying rock during that Pole-Shift hour, but they will be whoafully unprepared once the Pole-Shift is done. These souls will be dying of either dehydration and/or a diarrhea death from a dearth of potable water, but those who manage to procure clean drinking water, and who were uninjured during the Pole-Shift, will still be faced with death either by starvation or by the infections resulting from ingesting bad food.

On the other-hand, up in the hills and mountains, or those who have situated themselves on stable land that is safe from certain gargantuan water flows, will be those who have prepared ahead-of-time for the Pole-Shift: survival communities, small and large, who have equipped themselves with all the necessary equipment, tools, medical kits, dried and/or canned food, live animals/poultry for on-going husbandry, buildings, seeds and gardening gear and communication apparatus for an effective new life in the After-Time. However, a potential remaining issue could be: did you stock enough food to eat while setup and the transition to a 100% homesteading food supply becomes available?

I suggest moving away from “supermarket food”, or reliance upon it, as soon as possible and adopt the old methods of food procurement, preparation, drying, salting, fermenting and storage systems as a potential permanent replacement.

In my various dream states, I am consistently and sporadically reminded that food is the first requirement we will need and the first thing survivor-migrants will ask of us: “Do you have any food?”.
Buy and store more food than you think you will need!

The Last Pole-Shift.
Prior to the last pole-shift, the geographic North Pole was situated over Greenland, with the corresponding geographic South Pole on the coast of Antarctica facing Australia near Casey Station. This is why Greenland is: “still heavy with ice from that period”(zt).
This was also during the time of the historical Christian biblical reference-times of the Moses notoriety. He was in Egypt during those times, about the year 1637 BC. It is likely that, during those times in Egypt, Earths pre-pole-shift conditions were also assisted by the attending ET tech. During these end-times for Earth, it is also getting massive attention from ET workers. So what happens to Earth when a solar system interrupter transits through our solar system?: an orbitally-stopped Earth. I have described in my upcoming book, that with an Earth stopped in orbit, it causes seasons that are 7 years long, which is what we would be facing now without ET tech “tipping the globe” as the Zetas of Zetatalk have reported. It is the tipping of the Earth that simulates our seasons. Yes, there are many questions and corresponding answers, much of which I explain in my upcoming book. Our seasons would be in reverse order: Spring, becomes Winter, Winter morphs into Fall, and so on, but why? This is because Earth is not only stopped in orbit, but is being pushed backwards by an opposing Planet X advancing from the opposite direction.
Moses’ leadership to save the “Israelites”, referred to as: “his people”, was assisted by benign aliens/ETs. ET tech was provided to assist the operation (so-called “Exodus”), not because the people involved were of special status necessarily, but only because they were people of Earth needing assistance to survive the Pole-Shift. The Red Sea is due for big changes during this pending Pole-Shift event as well. The Arabian Plate abuts the Eurasian plate which manifests as a fault line up the middle of the Red Sea, therefore the stress between the Eurasian plate and the Arabian Plate is expressed at that juncture during the Pole-Shift: a widening of the sea.
New Madrid.
The New Madrid fault line, according to human science, runs along the Mississippi River with Memphis Tennessee located somewhat south of the center, where the fault line is supposed to have an overall length of about 125 miles. The reality, as pointed out by Zetalk, is that it actually extends from northeastern Mexico all the way through the city of New Madrid northward to the St. Lawrence seaway. Besides the obviousness of a deep channel widening into a gulf (St. Lawrence Seaway) being a split in the upper part of a continental plate, the reality of a much larger fault line also makes sense to me, since the continent of North America is really a craton made-up of an agglomeration of smaller continental plates from Earth's very, very long past. It is the compressing of various continental plates into a larger one that contributes to inherent fault lines that are hidden. Thereby, when the geological history according to geological scientists is observed, it is obvious that at one point in Earth’s fantastically varied history, that a massive event compressed the continents of the globe into a single continent: called: Pangaea.

Earth’s collision with one of Planet X’s moons many millions of years ago, created this human-designated continent of Pangaea, but prior to that, Earth was known by other extraterrestrial societies as a much larger planet called Tiamat. All this in my my book that I am writing, with thanks to Zecharia Sitchin, who wrote many books on the subject detailing the extremely ancient geological history of Earth. Since many millions of years ago, post Pangaea, Earth has subsequently become known as “Ki”. Pre-Pangaea, Earth, as Tiamat, orbited our Sun as the 5th planet from the Sun and was forced to migrate from the 5th to the 3rd orbital position due to that collision. Earth will not suffer such a collision during this Pole-Shift!
The New Madrid fault line has a history: as recent as December 16th, 1811 an earthquake of an estimated Richter 7.2 - 8.2, with aftershocks following up into February 1812, did vast damage across the area, so a pending major adjustment prior to the Pole-Shift would certainly be expected.
The core of the issue that most people ask me about is: “when will the “New Madrid” occur?” I have been saying for about 2 years that spring 2021 would be the timing, but apparently, the Zetas of Zetalk have finally, all be it tacitly suggested, that the timing will be in late 2020. The Zetas, speaking prophetically of the more common visibility of Planet X by January 2021: “The US will be dealing with the New Madrid by then…” On this statement, Nancy Lieder says in her most recent newsletter: “the New Madrid adjustment is close, and will happen before the end of 2020”.

The “New Madrid” is not a single event, but will be a series of events caused by an anticipated escalation of lateral geological pressure that exists between Earth’s rigid continental crust structures, specifically: to the south, a westward-rolling South American continent dragging over the Caribbean plate in the Gulf of Mexico which is against the southern portion of the North American plate. This silent but deadly geological action is bending the western section of North America to the west (like a bow: Alaska and California being pulled together) while the eastern portion of the North American continent remains more-or-less attached as the “Atlantic Seaboard” that extends into the eastern Atlantic to the Mid-Atlantic ridge where Eurasia (and the African Plate) abuts the North American continental plate. The anvil of the “New Madrid” event, is that the continental plate of North America is stuck-in-place against Eurasia under the Arctic Ocean, and so provides the drama that the Planet X magnetic hammer can batter the North American continent to bend like a bow to the west until the New Madrid fault line demonstrably adjusts. Of course, the worst of the New Madrid occurs during the Pole-Shift.

Since we now know that the New Madrid adjustments will begin this fall, that makes it about a few months over 2 years to get ready for the Pole-Shift for US citizens who need to transit over the Mississippi or move any appreciable distances east of the Mississippi River (FEMA, Military blockades). West of the Mississippi, damage will be less, but perspective travelers to their safe locations must take care to have alternate routes that do not involve passing over a bridge if at all possible. The closer the safe location route is to the Mississippi River, the more intense the damage on the ground will be. This first of the New Madrid adjustments is considerable but no where near the final adjustment during the Pole-Shift. There will be other adjustments after this pending one for late 2020.

Meanwhile, those of us on the ground, must take care to be able to establish our safe locations before the Pole-Shift arrives on February 4th, 2023. Note: February 4th, 2023 will be the first day of the historical “6 days of sunrise west”, or the first day of Earth’s stopped-rotation which will be proceeded by an additional 5.5 days of a still-Sun prior to the Pole-Shift.

This series of Planet X NewsLetters is the third iteration of which began in late 2009 with a then total of 18 issues by about mid-2011, then a second iteration of 4 issues in 2015. I love writing these NewsLetters because I can think, plan, cogitate the material and, by-the-way, get corrective feedback from my oversoul regarding the odd bits of detail prior to publishing, this way I can polish my words as I see fit and write according to the timing that works for me. Of course I use Zetatalk as a baseline, but, as in Life, one has to use what we were given as human beings to fill out the missing sections of Pole-Shift preparation with common sense and the application of general physics with an eye to the understanding that human man’s science is still in Universal diapers. The latter means one needs to think for themselves, most especially during these times.

On another note, I have been providing safe location advice for people around the world now for about 12 years now which I have provided for free, now this is changing as time is slowly becoming “of the essence”. For those who have few funds, or under circumstances where money is an issue, I still provide free assistance, but for those who can pay, I ask for $100 AMD (via Paypal) per session over the telephone, Zoom, Whatsapp or Facetime for specific safe location advice. Use: chrismwakefield@gmail.com to contact me regarding safe location advice.

The Pole-Shift is completely survivable! One only need to be out-of-the-wind below ground in a trench, somehow embedded in a hillside, in a homemade bunker or a natural cave (NOT a grotto or a dug-out hole without forethought as the Pole-Shift conditions). Remember, the Pole-Shift is only an hour long, so After-Time food and equipment should be your focus once your survival system is established. Food, Food, Food! Remember to get more food than you think you may need.
